

Environmental Policy

Our Approach

Tacchini is deeply committed to harmony: harmony between people and objects, and harmony between objects and their environment. These convictions are reflected in our aesthetic and environmental approach.

We do not ignore our responsibilities; however, we must also acknowledge the complex paradox inherent in industrial production and its environmental impact. When addressing sustainability, how can intention be separated from production? Complex situations require careful and well-considered evaluation.

Our Policy

The starting point for achieving our environmental objectives is our policy, which is applied and implemented across all company activities. It defines and documents our commitment through the Environmental Management System in compliance with the International Standard ISO 14001, aimed at:

- Ensuring compliance with mandatory environmental regulations as well as voluntarily undertaken obligations;
- Preventing and mitigating the environmental impacts of our activities and products;
- Continuously improving our environmental performance.

Our Global Environmental Project

The long-term project undertaken by the company arises from a strong sense of responsibility, driving us to develop solutions that are increasingly environmentally compatible.

Our goal is to create a virtuous cycle in which all those collaborating with Tacchini globally can participate and benefit.

This project, which aims at the progressive integration of our products, will focus on reducing the consumption of environmental resources during production and promoting the use of materials with a lower environmental impact.
